GENEVA, April 8 (Reuter) - U.N. secretary general Boutros-Boutros Ghali said he was preparing an urgent report for the Security Council on measures to take to protect U.N. personnel in Rwanda after the death of 10 Belgian soldiers.

In a statement read by his spokeswoman in Geneva, he deplored the deaths of Rwanda's prime minister as well as the 10 Belgians who were serving as U.N. peace keepers in Kigali.

"The secretary general is urgently preparing a report to the Security Council on the measures to take so as to protect the U.N. personnel in Rwanda," said the statement.

U.N. sources said any decision on evacuating U.N. staff from Rwanda would be taken directly by the secretary-general, who arrived in Geneva late on Thursday for a five-day visit to U.N. European headquarters.
