LONDON, April 13 (Reuter) - Thousands of refugees are fleeing fighting in Rwanda every day and are filling camps in Burundi and Zaire, an international medical charity said.

At least 14,000 Rwandan refugees have arrived in Zaire over the past few days, the British office of the Brussels-based Medecins Sans Frontieres (Doctors Without Borders) said in a statement.

“Up to 3,000 Burundians and Rwandans arrived in Burundi’s Kirundo province today,” the statement said.
